MONTANA STATE LITE 1515 E. 6th AVI HELENA. MONTAN

Located in southwestern Montana, Beaverhead County is number one in Montana for total number of cattle and calves and has 204 beef cattle ranches (see table to the right), making the county an important player in the state's cattle industry. The cattle industry is the number one agricultural industry in Montana in terms of sales and revenues, according to the 2002 Census of Agriculture.

Information on the inside table, Employment by Industry, Annual Averages for 2003, shows government is also important to the area economy with slightly more than one-third of the total wages coming from this sector. Government wages (mainly forestry and the university) average about $10,000 more per job than private sector wages per job.

Beaverhead County is Montana's 24th most populous with 8,919 residents, according to the 2003 U.S. Census Bureau estimates. Dillon, the county seat, is the state's 20th largest city with a population of 4,035. According to the U.S. Census Bureau, median income for Beaverhead County households in 2002 was $30,478, compared to Montana's median income of $34,105 for the same year. Median income is the average per household income in the county (no matter how many people live in the home); per capita income (inside table) is all income in the county divided by the number of people in the county.

The county is also home to The University of Montana Western. According to the Montana Almanac, by authors Andrea Merrill and Judy Jacobson, the county was established in 1865 and is the largest county in terms of area. The authors say the county name is from the Shoshone, after a rock formation shaped like a beaver's head along the Beaverhead River, 12 miles southwest of Twin Bridges. Bannack, a gold mining town, was the county seat until it was changed to Dillon in 1881. The authors add, Montana's sheep industry originated in Beaverhead County and the county's also home to the Big Hole River, famous for its blueribbon trout fishing.
